

THE NEED

Effective third-party security management is challenging.

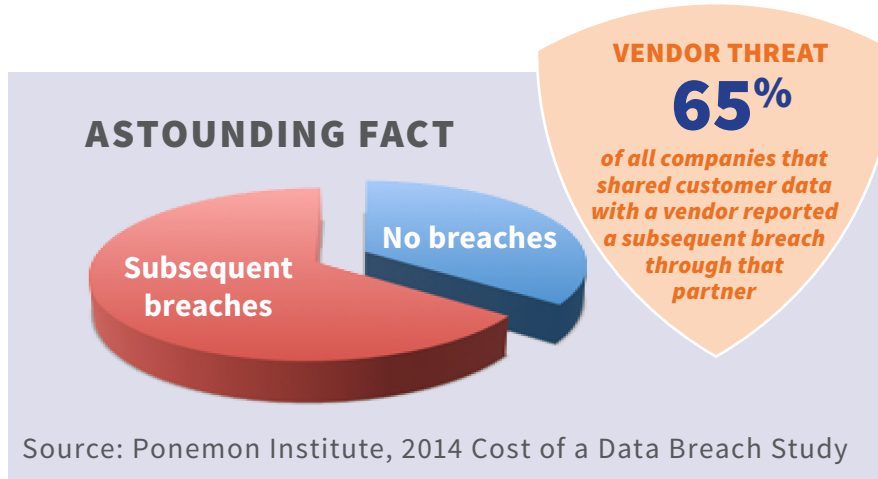

Most organizations find it difficult enough to manage just themselves and their employees. Overlay shared responsibility for liability for the actions of hundreds or thousands of vendors and the magnitude of the compliance problem quickly spirals out of control.

In many cases, you are liable for the actions and omissions of your vendors. It's the law, and penalties for lax oversight are steep.

If you're a vendor working with a companies in regulated industries, your liability also extends to the actions and omissions of your vendors and subcontractors. Don't risk facing a tornado of costly penalties, and potential criminal prosecution with little warning.
